

Samuel McCraw to James Breckinridge, Richmond, 28 November 1787 (excerpt)

... I know not one occurrence that has taken p[lace] since your departure, worthy your Notice. The Fœderal Government, has and still continue to be a mean of discovering more of the Welch Blood in our Citizens, than I ever immagined they possessed:—Colo. Harvie still labours in obviating the many objections to this immaculate Constitution; this Ev'ning I expect to hear him hold forth on this Subject.—tis the second Ev'ning that has been Appropriated in the Robin-Hood for the discussion of this Subject,—you cannot conceive how amazingly the number of this Society increases, and the expectation of many much hightend, in consequence of Gov. & Rob. Morris's being in Town. As they are notoriously known to be favorites to this system, I hope to have the Satisfaction of hearing one or both of them on this all important Subject....

Cite as: The Documentary History of the Ratification of the Constitution Digital Edition, ed. John P. Kaminski, Gaspare J. Saladino, Richard Leffler, Charles H. Schoenleber and Margaret A. Hogan. Charlottesville: University of Virginia Press, 2009.

Canonic URL: <http://rotunda.upress.virginia.edu/founders/RNCN-02-08-02-0001-0116-0001> [accessed 15 Nov 2012]

Original source: Ratification by the States, Volume VIII: Virginia, No. 1